

AFFAIRS IN BROOKLYN.

A MAIDMAN'S REASON FOR MURDER.

DOUGHERTY SAYS HE DID DR. LLOYD A SERVICE
BY KILLING HIM—HE IS HELD FOR THE GRAND JURY.

James D. Dougherty, Mary Anderson's crasy admirer, who shot and killed Dr. George W. Lloyd, the assistant superintendent of the Flatbush Insane Asylum, on Thursday afternoon, was arraigned in the Tompkins County, in New York yesterday morning, and finally handed over to the Brooklyn police. Dougherty was taken to the Brooklyn Police Head-quarters by three officers. Dr. Edwin W. Ashford, who was the means of his arrest, questioned him carefully, in Superintendent Campbell's office, and the insane man answered readily and clearly.

"Did you do the shooting out of revenge?" was asked by the doctor.

"No. I did it from justice. What gave those people the right to capture some men in the street and put them in an asylum?"

"Why did you shoot Dr. Lloyd when you were looking for Dr. Fleming?"

"I had only one reason, and that was sufficient. He lied to me."

"Was it through animosity that you did so cruel an act?"

"Animosity would never prompt me to such a deed. There is no necessity for accounting for it. I shot him thoroughly and he had no pain. When any one shoots me I hope it will be as well done. I meant to clean them all out. I wanted to shoot Dr. Fleming and Dr. Arnold, and I would have shot the commissioners. I wanted to stop them picking up people and putting them in the asylum."

"What did you think the consequences would be to you?"

"Why, consequences are a matter of indifference to me. I am not afraid to die at once. I believe I did Dr. Lloyd a good service and have saved him a world of trouble. He had to die some time, and I have saved him years of agony."

After being questioned by Police Superintendent Campbell, Dougherty was carefully measured and taken to the Flatbush Town Hall, where he was arraigned before Justice Birnbaum. He pleaded guilty to the charge against him and was committed to Raymont Street Jail to await the action of the Grand Jury. A commission in inquest will be appointed to examine his mental condition, and if judicially pronounced fit, he will be placed in the State Lunatic Asylum at Utica.

The body of Dr. Lloyd was embalmed yesterday and awaits the disposition of his friends. His remains were interred in the cemetery in Hoboken, where Dr. Lloyd's brother in Cincinnati was sent for and came on yesterday. Charles Commissioner Goff said that the death of Dr. Lloyd affected him deeply, and that of a year from now he would be the most promising physician on the staff. An autopsy was held by County Physician Shepard yesterday afternoon under direction of Coroner Rooney, and the inquest was adjourned.

LOBING A BOBBLETON FOUND DEAD.

SUCCUBATION CAUSED BY ASTHMA PROBABLY KILLED HIM.

Loring A. Robertson, a wealthy leather merchant in New-York, was found dead in bed in his room at the St. George Hotel, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon. He was a bachelor, about thirty years old. For many years he lived at the Pleasanton House in Brooklyn, and about three months ago went to the Hotel St. George, at Clark and Henry st., where he occupied one of the finest suites of rooms in the house.

He had not been in good health for some time, and suffered from an asthmatic affection, for which he was under medical treatment. When he had not been at home yesterday and failed to respond when called, Captain Timbridge, the proprietor, decided to send him into the room. This was done, and Mr. Robertson was found dead. He had evidently expired after he had been in bed some time. There was no evidence that he had not died a natural death, and no gas in the room, the house being lighted by electricity. The physician who attended Mr. Robertson was called in, and he said that a cursory examination showed that death was due to heart failure, probably produced by suffocation resulting from his asthma.

Mr. Robertson's office in New York was at No. 81 Gold-st., and his firm had a factory at No. 471 Kent-ave., Brooklyn. The New York directory gives his home in Pennsylvania, but he was accustomed to spend most of his time in Brooklyn.

HE TABBED AND FEATHERED HIMSELF.

William Prior, nineteen years old, early yesterday day was discovered lying insensible on a truck before No. 54 Bow-st., with his body covered with tar and feathers. When the young man was brought from his insensible condition in the sixteenth Precinct Police Station he said that he had been to a theatre in New York, and while on his way home in Brooklyn two men leaped from a coach in Jerry-st. and one of them struck him on the head. He said he struggled with his assailants. From that time on, although he recollects that a bandit chief with chisel-form was placed to his nostrils, he professed to know nothing. The young man said he lived at No. 25 Bedford-ave. When found the boy had on a pair of trousers and a sack coat over his dress of tar and feathers. Nearly was found a can of tar and a pillow half-filled with feathers. The police arrested Henry Lashkin on suspicion, and charged him that Prior on Tuesday morning had left him, saying that he was going to be fixed in tar and feathers. The police learned further that Prior and two young men had driven to the house of Edward J. Johnson, of No. 215 Division-ave. The men, including Johnson, were arrested.

A largely attended meeting took place last evening in the Church of the Paulist Fathers, Fifty-ninth and Madison-ave., to commemorate the centenary of the birth of the famous apostle of temperance, Father Mathew, who was a native of County Tipperary, Ireland, and was ordained a priest in 1811. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. John Dunn, of the Church of the Sacred Heart, and Father Woodman, Brad and Elliott, of St. Paul's Church, were among the speakers.

The consecration services of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of St. James, Seventy-third st. and Madison-ave., will be held to-morrow. The consecration of the new church will take place at 11 a. m., while services will be held at 5:45 and 7 p. m. On Sunday, October 16, the Sunday school will resume its meetings in the lecture room attached to the church.

THE SMALL MINISTER STRUCK THE BIG DANE.

Among the passengers on a bridge train on Thursday evening on their way to Brooklyn were the Rev. Nathaniel Nicola, pastor of the German Reformed Church in Canarsie, L. I., and W. Patterson, of No. 229 Centre-st., New York. The latter weighs nearly 300 pounds, while the minister is a small man. In boarding the train at the New York station Mr. Nicola accidentally jostled Mr. Peterson, who gave expression to violent wrath in choice Danish, which Mr. Nicola understood. Not content with vituperating the minister, Mr. Peterson watched his opportunity when getting off the train in Brooklyn and jammed Mr. Nicola against one of the posts of the platform. This was too much for his clerical temper, and Mr. Nicola struck his assailant in the chest. Before the How could be returned a policeman interfered and took the two men to the police station, where they preferred counter-charges against each other. But rather than be locked up with them withdrew the police, who were held by Justice Goeting to answer to a charge of assault in the second degree.

MR. LATIROP SUSTAINED HIS DIGNITY.

President William E. Lathrop, of the Amateur Opera Association, who is supposed to put himself in proper form for discharging the duties of his office at his desk by donning a dress suit and white tie, was recently horrified to find among the mail laid upon his desk by an office boy in lieux a letter in a plain business envelope. After opening it, his breath was fairly taken away by the discovery that the note had been written by Benjamin Beckman, financial secretary of the association. Mr. Beckman had even written the note upon a common sheet of note paper instead of that graced with the official heading and seal of the association. Mr. Lathrop sat down in his plush-covered office chair, and on his instant dash, with violet ink upon official paper, addressed a note to Mr. Beckman for forgoing his duty in the use of official note paper. Mr. Beckman at once rose to the occasion, and promptly bundled up the books of his office and enclosed them with his resignation, which Mr. Lathrop promptly received, and peace reigned.

THE SECTINE OF DR. MCGREGOR DELAYED.

Dr. Henry G. McGregor, who was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for causing the death of Annie Goodwin by malpractice, was arraigned before Judge Fitzgerald in Part III of General Sessions yesterday for sentence. The old man wore a look of uneasiness which passed when the application of his counsel, Charles W. Broke, for a suspension of sentence until October 20 was granted. Mr. Broke said that he had been retained only thirty-six hours before, and hence had not had sufficient time to examine the papers. Colonel Andrew D. Baird, his father, a witness, had interposed his statement before a jury, and the court adjourned.

A BLAZE IN THE GERLACH APARTMENT HOUSE.

A fire in the basement of the ten-story Gerlach apartment house there at 34 w. seventh-st. caused a slight commotion there at 3 a. m. yesterday. Part of the wooden floor of the back arch above the entrance to the sub-cellars, and yesterday morning an oil lamp on the embers exploded and set fire to the wood. The engineer tried to extinguish the flames, but they continued to smoulder under the floor until the firemen were called. The damage by the fire did not exceed $100, but the smoke went up through the house, and Mr. Gerlach that the church had decided to discharge Miss Title Palmer, the organist, who had been drawing a salary of $25 a quarter. The church did not feel able to pay that sum for organ playing, but had preferred to apply the amount toward the extinction of the church debt. Last Sunday the members of the choir and the organist sat in the audience in a body, and William H. Campbell, the gray-haired chairman of the New York Court of Appeals, and Judge John G. Sunseri, of Hudson County, presided. The organist had rung the changes intoned by either organ or choir. She had been fired by the choir of the choir that they had become tired of singing for nothing.
